Fund Review The Fund performance was (5.4%) in October. This compares to the TSX Venture index return of 1.9% and the TSX Small Cap index return of 3.7%.

The Fund struggled in October as some of our larger positions gave back gains made in previous months. There was no news released in relation to these positions that caused the stocks to decrease. We are expecting several positive catalysts over the next few months which should result in stronger share prices for these positions.

Overall, the resource sector lagged in October as the non-resource sectors continued to outperform. The weakness was prompted by a $6 decline in oil and a modest decline in gold. It is notable that September import data for China showed that crude, iron ore, and copper imports rose to record and multi-year highs. This important data combined with recent higher revisions for China's GDP growth rate, give us confidence that the fundamentals for the resource sector continues to improve.

We believe that there is support at current commodity price levels and that energy equities in particular look attractive at this point. We expect significant production growth from all of our energy holdings over the next year, and improved commodity price performance should combine to produce strong gains.

The current sector mix of the portfolio is comprised of 46% in base metals, 3% in coal, 22% in uranium, 4% in iron ore, 7% in precious metals, 10% in agriculture, and 8% in energy.

Outlook Since the recent low in June near 11,800, the TSX Composite has performed well. As we have predicted in earlier commentaries this year, the TSX Composite has outperformed the S&P 500 index over this period. We expect this to continue over the coming year. The technically significant level of 12,900, which marked the top of a two year trading range for the TSX Composite, was surpassed in October. In our view, the definitive breaking of this resistance level is very significant and supportive of substantially higher prices over the next year. The TSX Venture index has also performed well as October marked the fourth consecutive month of gains. This is the first time since 2010 that the TSX Venture index has returned four positive months in a row. Although the gains have been modest to date, we expect performance will accelerate over the next year.

In October, we saw increased deal flow for small cap equities and many of these deals were oversubscribed. This is an encouraging sign and points to an increased interest in Canadian small cap equities from investors. Recent fund flow data reported by the Investment Funds Institute of Canada (IFIC) supports this change in sentiment as September data showed the first month of positive net sales of Canadian equity mutual funds since February 2007. Sixty six consecutive months of negative sales have provided a significant headwind for Canadian equity prices in recent years. Fixed income has been the beneficiary of investor capital. This is now changing. We believe the bull market in fixed income has ended. The baton has been passed to equities!

Regards,

Steven Palmer, CFA
President and CEO

Investment Strategy

The AlphaNorth Resource Fund (the "Fund") is an open-ended mutual fund. The investment objective of the Fund is to generate strong returns by investing in Canadian resource companies that offer attractive risk-reward characteristics. The Fund invests primarily in junior and intermediate Canadian resource companies, and will evaluate industry and company fundamentals to evaluate investment opportunities which offer the most attractive risk-reward. AlphaNorth believes that superior long term investment returns are achievable by exploiting inefficiencies in the Canadian small to medium-cap universe through careful security selection. Fundamental analysis of companies is used in combination with technical analysis techniques, which has proven to be successful, to assist in the timing of buy/sell decisions. The firm combines both a bottom-up and top-down strategy in the selection of investments offering the best risk/reward characteristics.
