AlphaNorth Growth Fund

November 2013

NAV
Series A (ANF010) $4.857
Series F (ANF011) $4.953

Fund Review The Fund returned (5.4%) in November. This compared to (2.5%) for the TSX Venture and 0.5% for the TSX Total Return index.

Performance in November was negatively impacted by Dualex Energy (TSXV:DXE) which declined 41% in November. We believe that investors overreacted to a delay in testing a very prospective well on the company's Tunisia property. It is perplexing to us as to why investors have interpreted this development so negatively while the well remains un-evaluated. We view this event as a short term delay in testing the well and does not warrant the aggressive decline in the share price.

On a positive note, Patent Properties (OTC:PPRO) rallied 42% during the month of November as the company's positive fundamentals become more widely known. The company holds a large portfolio of intellectual property and technology patents which it licenses and develops.

Sector positioning has become more balanced in recent months between resources (54%) and non-resources (46%). This has been a function of bottom up deal flow which has presented more attractive opportunities on non-resource companies and a strategic decision to balance the exposure to resources. The current sector mix is comprised of 26% in technology, 14% in health care, 2% in financials, 4% in consumer discretionary, 20% in energy and 34% in materials.

Outlook December is a seasonally strong period for Canadian equities. Over the past 30 years, the TSX Composite has generated positive returns 90% of the time in the month of December. The TSX Venture has demonstrated similar results since the index was created in 2001, generating an average return of 5.0% in December, with 92% of the observations being positive. The returns are highly skewed to the last half of the month where stocks routinely trade higher over the last few days of the year.

The recent strength in economic data has led to considerable discussion of Fed tapering in the near future. Signs of tapering would push bond yields upwards and bond values downwards, likely causing a further shift of investment into equities which we believe is still in its initial stages. We believe that a combination of weaker US dollar and accelerating global growth will benefit commodity prices. This should result in outperformance of Canadian equities (after 3 years of underperformance compared to US equities) as the resource component of the TSX begins to outperform. We believe positive fund flows, which recently turned positive into Canadian equities, combined with strength in the resources, will result in strength in small cap equities in the coming months.

Regards,

Steven Palmer

Investment Strategy

The AlphaNorth Growth Fund (the "Fund") is an open-ended mutual fund focusing primarily on Canadian small to mid-capitalization equities, between $100 million and $5 billion market capitalization. The Fund employs a similar style and investment methodology as the highly successful AlphaNorth Partners Fund. The Fund's investment objective is to maximize returns over the long term through superior selection of principally Canadian securities. AlphaNorth believes that superior long term investment returns are achievable by exploiting inefficiencies in the Canadian small to medium-cap universe through careful security selection. Fundamental analysis of companies is used in combination with technical analysis techniques, which has proven to be successful, to assist in the timing of buy/sell decisions. The firm combines both a bottom-up and top-down strategy in the selection of investments offering the best risk/reward characteristics.
