AlphaNorth Growth Fund

April 2014

NAV
Series A (ANF010) $4.722
Series F (ANF011) $4.835

Fund Review The Fund returned (8.9%) in April. This compared to 0.7% for the TSX Venture and 3.0% for the TSX Total Return index.

The negative performance in April can be attributed largely to declines in the technology and life science positions. The correction in the U.S. life science and technology sectors resulted in a spillover effect to many of the Canadian listed names in these sectors. These sectors have been the best performing in recent months and it is not unusual for this type of correction after such a strong run of performance. With respect to the Fund's exposure to these areas, the fundamentals have not changed and our investment thesis remains intact for the majority of the positions. We have taken advantage of the recent weakness to add a couple of new positions in the life sciences sector. Prometic Life Sciences (TSX:PLI) is a platform technology whose technology produces plasma derived products for drug development as well as its own small molecule drug development program. We also participated in the recent financing for Lorus Therapeutics (TSX:LOR), a company with novel cancer therapy technology. We are waiting on important catalysts for several portfolio holdings which can be expected to result in strong gains for the underlying shares.

We continue to have no major sector biases. The current sector mix is comprised of 29% in technology, 13% in health care, 1% in financials, 3% in consumer discretionary, 31% in energy and 18% in materials.

Outlook Equity market weakness in early April prompted fears of a meaningful correction. We believe much of this was associated with the "sell in May and go away" adage and the fact that markets are still digesting the strong gains over the past year. However, this correction has proven to be short-lived as equity markets have rebounded strongly. This has been the case on many occasions over the past couple of years and has kept many investors on the sidelines who continue to hold out for a more substantial correction before buying. We expect that this is likely to continue to be the case for the foreseeable future. Equities continue to represent the superior risk/reward compared to other asset classes.

We see three primary factors which will drive stocks higher: strong corporate earnings, improving investor sentiment/risk tolerance and a rotation from low return fixed income investment back into equities.

We have been noting for a long time the continuing improvement in the U.S. economy. This has been a major driver of the turn in investor confidence. The U.S. unemployment rate has improved dramatically to 6.3% from 10% four years ago. Corporate earnings and balance sheets are strong and corporations are now raising guidance for the first time in 2.5 years. We remain bullish on Canadian equities for 2014, particularly small cap equities.

Regards,

Steven Palmer, CFA

Investment Strategy

The AlphaNorth Growth Fund (the "Fund") is an open-ended mutual fund focusing primarily on Canadian small to mid-capitalization equities, between $100 million and $5 billion market capitalization. The Fund employs a similar style and investment methodology as the highly successful AlphaNorth Partners Fund. The Fund's investment objective is to maximize returns over the long term through superior selection of principally Canadian securities. AlphaNorth believes that superior long term investment returns are achievable by exploiting inefficiencies in the Canadian small to medium-cap universe through careful security selection. Fundamental analysis of companies is used in combination with technical analysis techniques, have proven to be successful, to assist in the timing of buy/sell decisions. The firm combines both a bottom-up and top-down strategy in the selection of investments offering the best risk/reward characteristics.
